Rumble
Youthquake is felt
Erupting in effervescent enthusiasm, or
Subdued silence of solitude
Something must happen
Youthquake
Is there

The sound of today's music can provide
An escape from problems
Enjoyment
The urge to dance
A young
Sound
Containing hidden meanings
Which some may never discover

A feeling of doubt and insecurity

Abounds

Youth steps into a world demanding

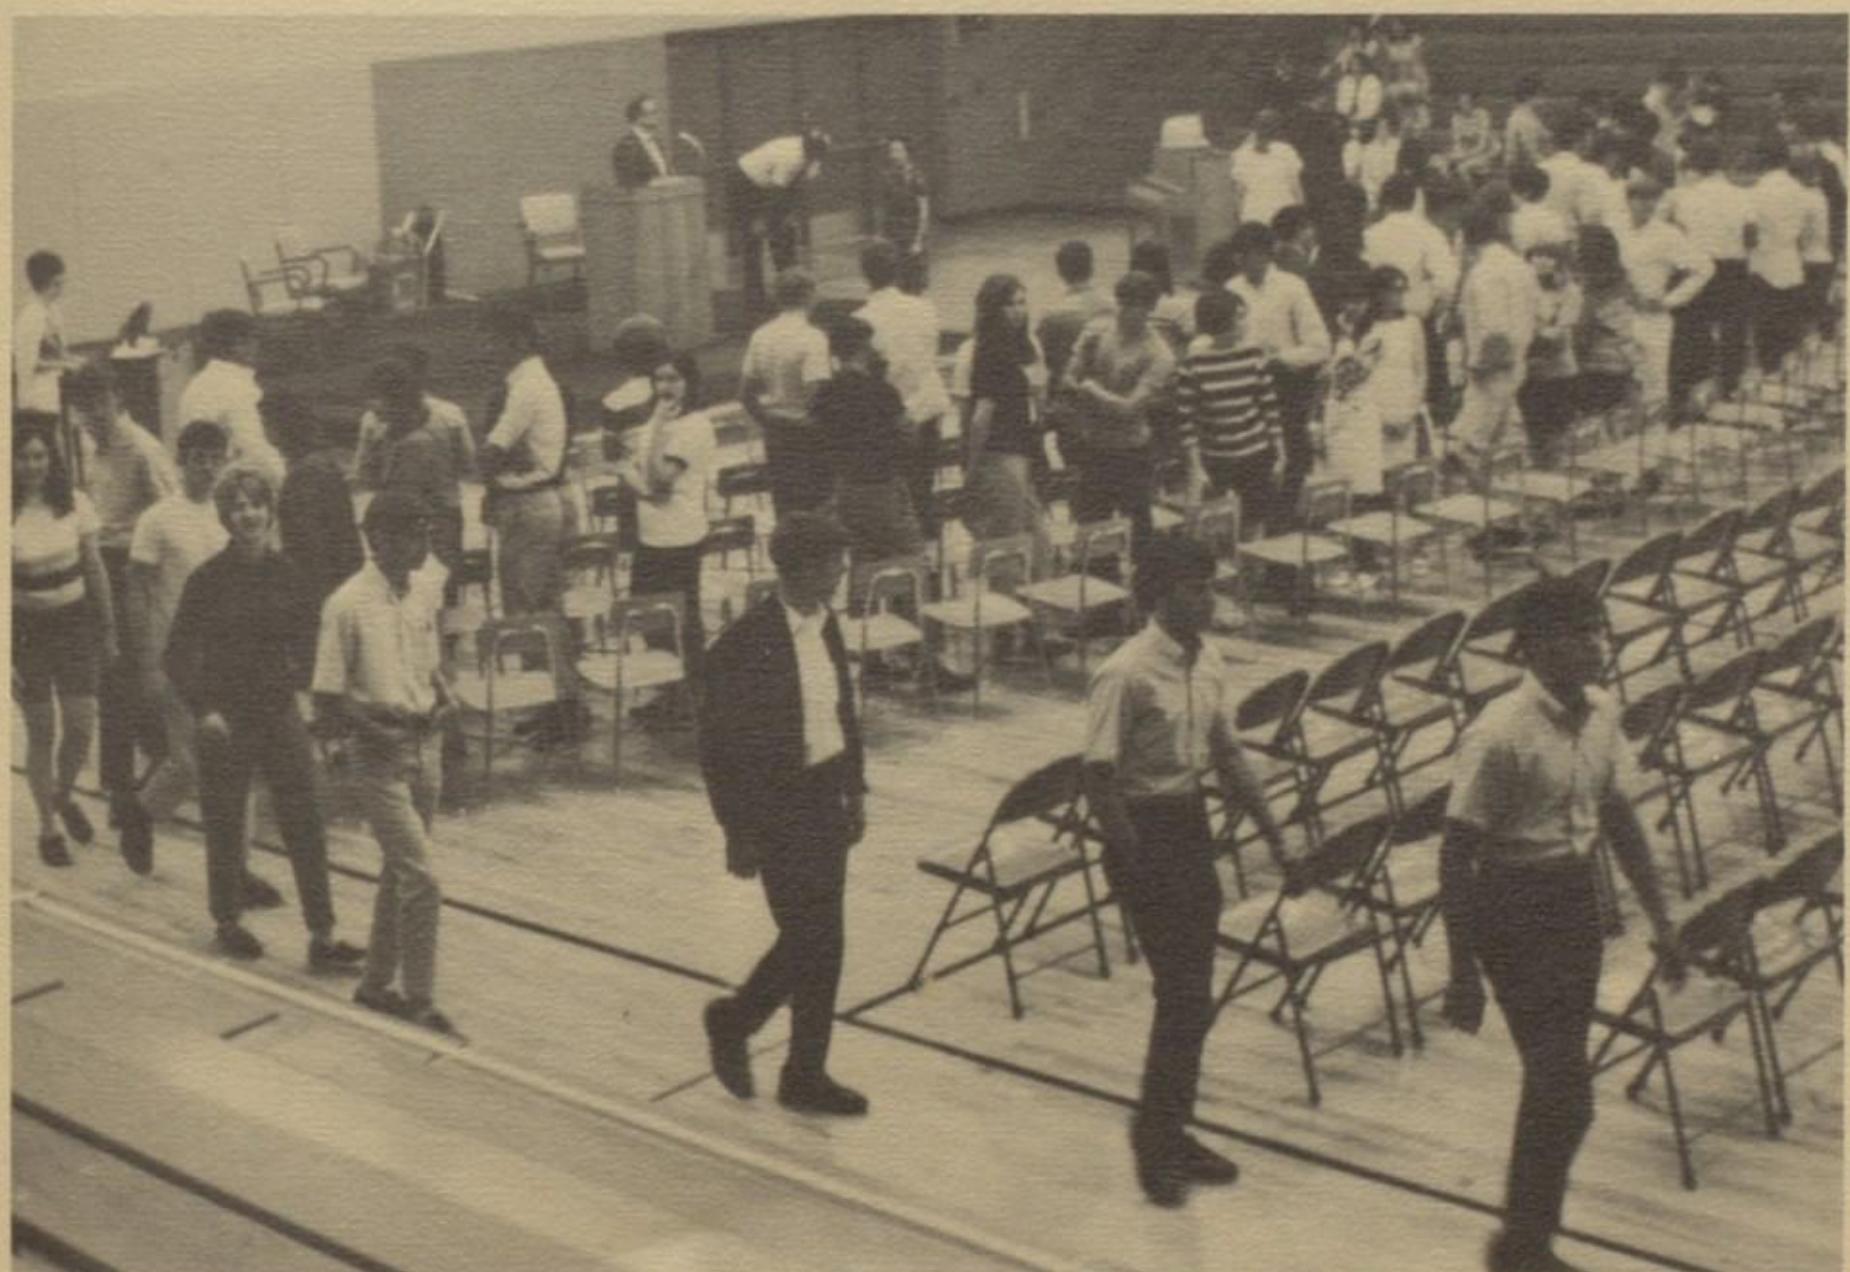

Conformity. Somewhere there is

Acceptance

Certainty and

Freedom from unwanted criticism

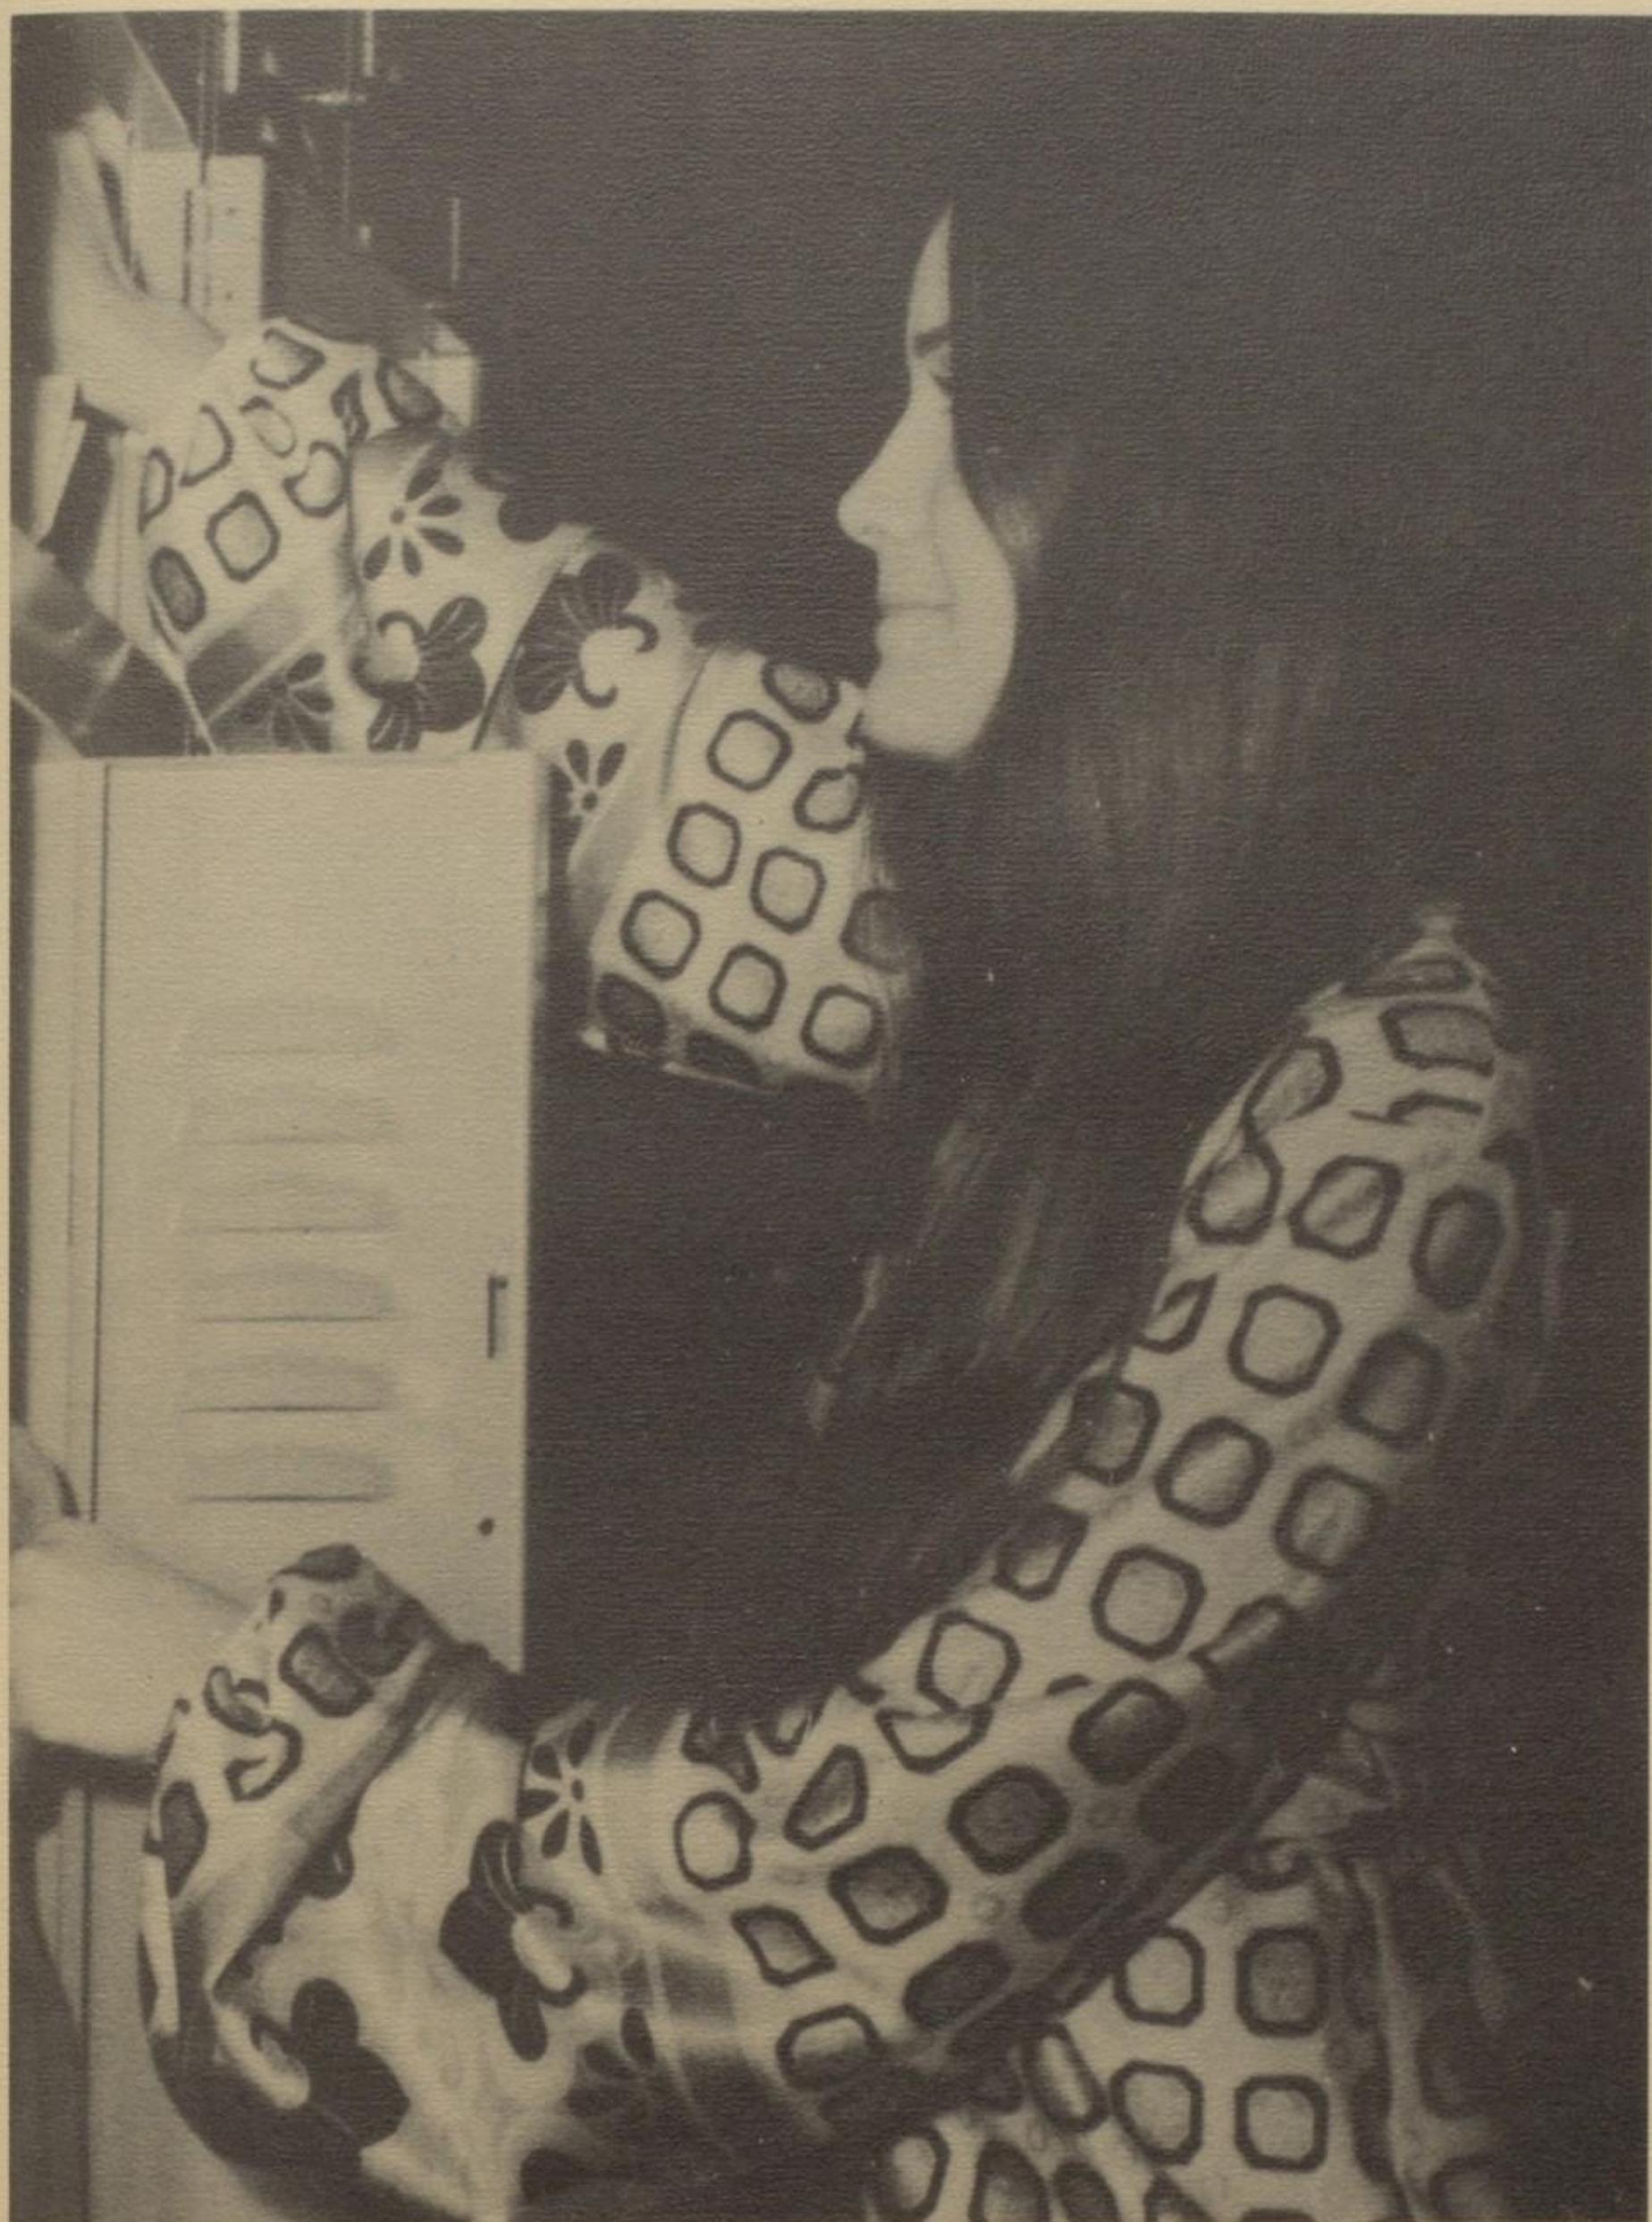

When . . . where . . .

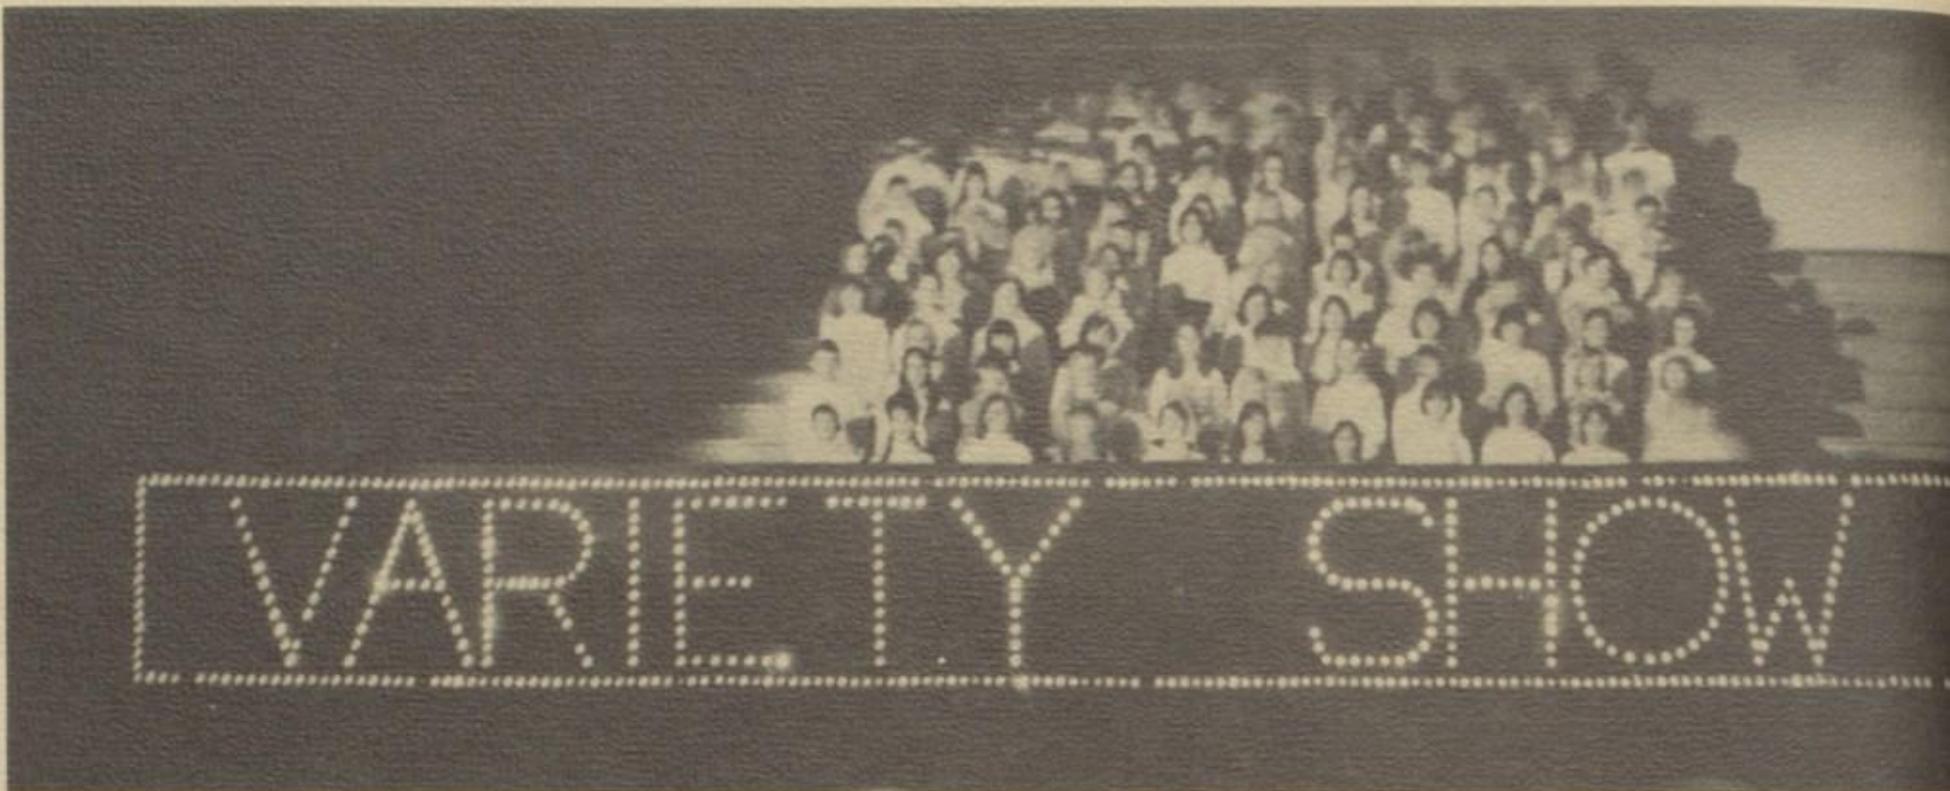

Vibrant colors and daring styles evoke a shock
But individuality must be proved
If it takes the unexpected . . .
Youth is ready to comply

Concentration Was Necessary

Deep in thought, Bruce Dragoo was unaware of the presence of a LEGEND photographer.

Concentration being the prime element of such classes as English, math, science and electrical shop, students must focus their attention on learning various rules, and often exceptions to the rules. Frustration is frequently the result of studying the rules, postulates, and theorems, only to discover their many deviations.

Many guides must be followed strictly in science and electrical shop classes, not only to increase efficiency in work, but also to avoid injury to students as the result of careless accidents.

During a class, Lisa Irby used much concentration to express her thoughts.

Keith Hill assisted Mr. Craig in a chemistry experiment which concerned finding the volume of a certain unidentified gas.

Study Habit

Chuck Hammer sought the correct wiring for his electrical shop project.

Libbe Bird and Vicki Howell cut litmus paper for acid testing in biology lab.

Jennifer Norris and Celeste Strohm were asked during Algebra I class to solve an equation which was on the blackboard.

Jobs Required Concentration

Bulletin boards were a challenge to Julie Carraway.

The Raider Brass provided the music at the pep sessions during the year.

Beverly Strong learned that concentration was necessary to transcribe dictation from a tape recorder in intensive lab.

Mr. Rees concentrated on making his point definite and understandable.

Mike Garringer watched intently as Mr. McDavitt explained the solution to the analytic geometry problem.

Thoughts Transmitted Through

Cheri Irby and Mitch Burke did portrait studies with charcoal in advanced art.

Display windows helped to express the Christmas spirit.

Arthur Baker took his turn giving the daily announcements, a speech class requirement.

Expression

Conveying feelings by choosing the right words, vocal tones, and facial expressions help to get our ideas across to other persons. Drama and speech classes give students an opportunity to express themselves extemporaneously and through prepared delivery, while choir members express mood through song.

Music and art are forms of non-verbal expression. By using line and color, a student learns to express what he feels. Music can convey anything the performer or listener may hear in it.

The marching band uses flashy routines and brightly colored uniforms along with the music to transmit a feeling of excitement.

Practicing was just one segment of band class as shown by Kathy Fletcher.

Harold Brown gave his required speech in the school auditorium.

Mike Nunamaker depicted Scrooge on posters for the Christmas play.

Impressions

Mrs. Coon helped Roger Spidel prepare for vocal solo competition.

Ileen Stanley and Sylvia Barbier practiced for one of the numerous school concerts.

Mr. Litherland helped solve a problem for Linda Conwell.

Among the duties of Barbara Case, a library aide, was finding the library cards for each day.

Efficient Organization Meant Success

A cluttered desk, a messy kitchen table, or a stack of books haphazardly tossed on the shelves does not induce a feeling of efficiency. Whether in the library, the office, or at home, without a little organization, total confusion would prevail.

Home economics teaches that a little planning can help increase the speed in which house work can be completed, or help insure the success of the daily meals. In the library, organization is acquired by alphabetizing and classifying according to the Dewey Decimal System. Intensive lab prepares students for jobs in the office where the organization of the secretary can help keep the office running smoothly.

During a home economics lab, the students learned the correct method of decorating cakes.

Carolyn Woolard used an adding machine in intensive lab, as Mr. Boggs looked on.

Kathy Fletcher, Roger Wright and Georgia Lee organized term paper materials for English.

Basketball games were played during many physical education classes.

Kenton Jackson showed that although drafting has many assets, it has one disadvantage—it's hard on your back.

Coordination: Performance of Mind and Body

Whether using a typewriter, doing a forward roll, or working with wood, a student's mind and muscles must function together. Being able to move the fingers and hit the right keys at the right time takes practice and patience. Physical education classes use coordination every minute in running, doing exercises, using the parallel bars, and tumbling.

Industrial arts and sewing classes employ the use of many tools, be it a needle or a lathe. All the time the mind is working actively to relay the right message to the muscles.

Skills Required Coordination

Carol Hill learned to type quickly and accurately.

Georgia Lee and her spring dress were the subject for this aerial view in sewing class.

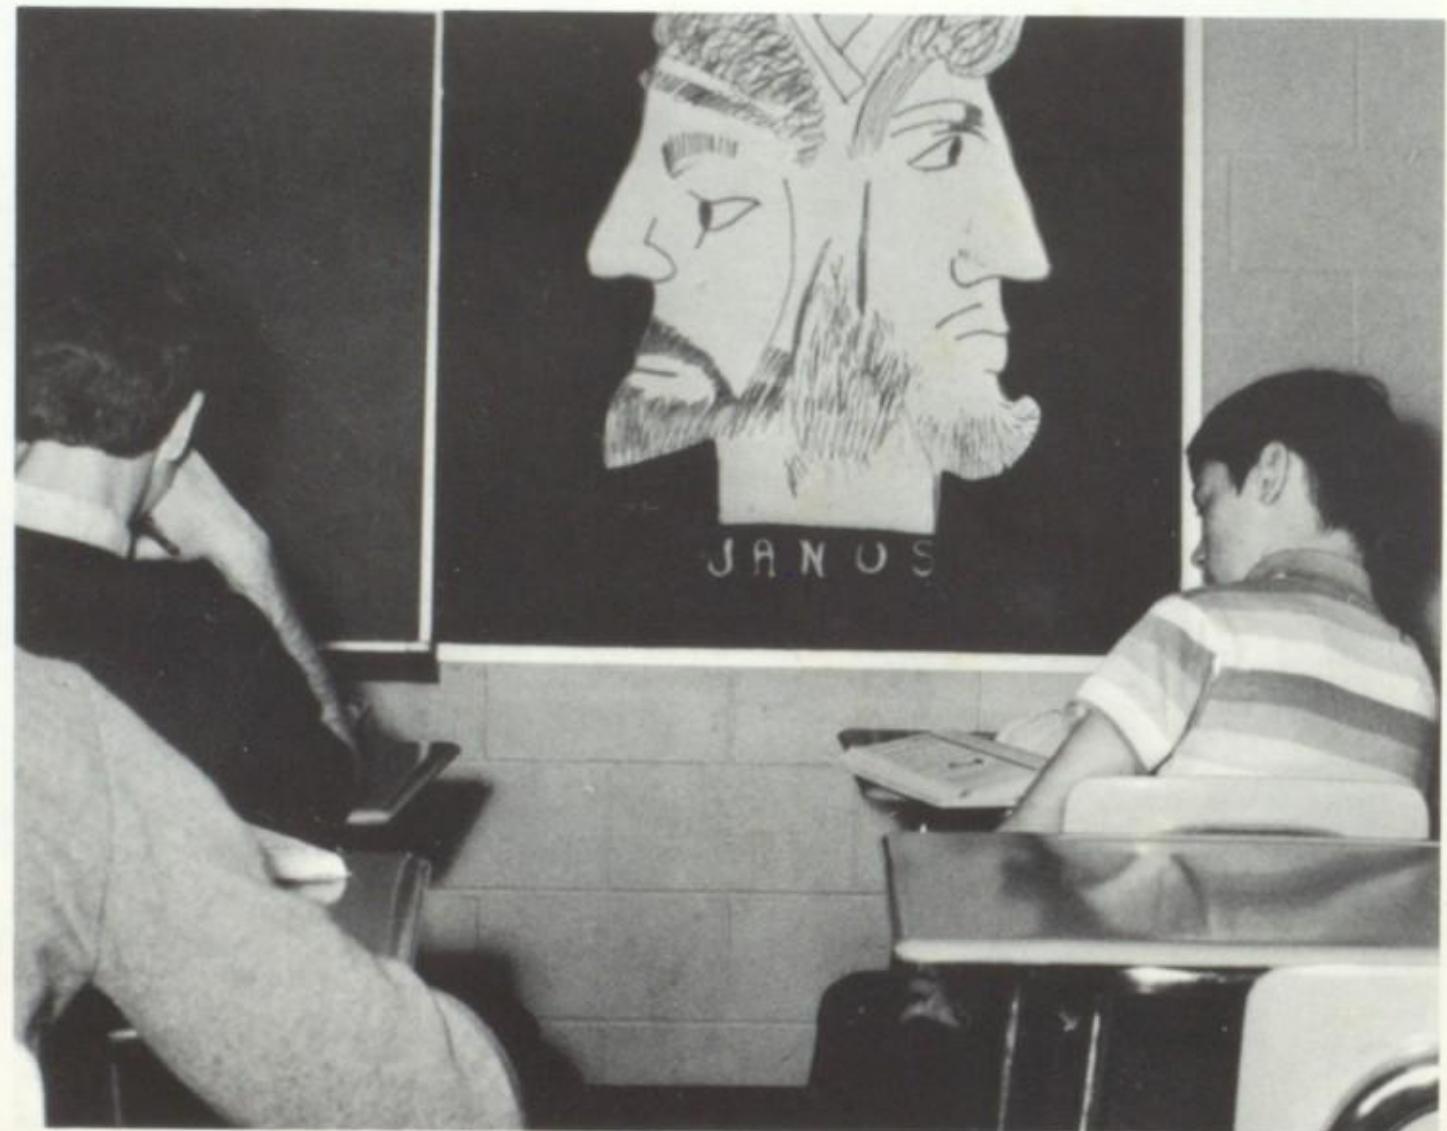

Mrs. Doolittle helped Anita Vester pin a pattern to her fabric.

Working on his car, Chuck Turner used many of the mechanical aids available to automotive students.

Chuck Hammer, Doug Black and Elizabeth Beard were wrapped up in an interesting discussion in government class.

Richard Huffman and Tim Buschor were unaware that the god Janus on the bulletin board can look into both their past and future.

Martha Boggs, exchange student to Ecuador, summer of 1969, and Bill Pereyra, Argentina, posed with Wapahani's Spanish instructor, Mrs. Carter.

Communication Provided Understanding

Social studies is the communication of ideas from the past and the present. By reading and discussing, it was possible for history and government students to gain more understanding of people of other nations and how governments are run. Better informed students hopefully become better citizens.

Distributive education and language classes help students communicate with other people, whether they are speaking a foreign language or executing a convincing sales pitch.

Many students discovered last summer that the learning process can be greatly enhanced by experiences outside the classroom. Traveling to new and exciting places required adapting readily to different situations.

Mr. Fahl handed out many papers to his classes during the school year.

Classroom Extended into Community

Dave Gilliam and Kenton Irby practiced their Spanish during lab.

Working at Men's Town,
Dick Hamilton helped Mr.
Brown with his coat.

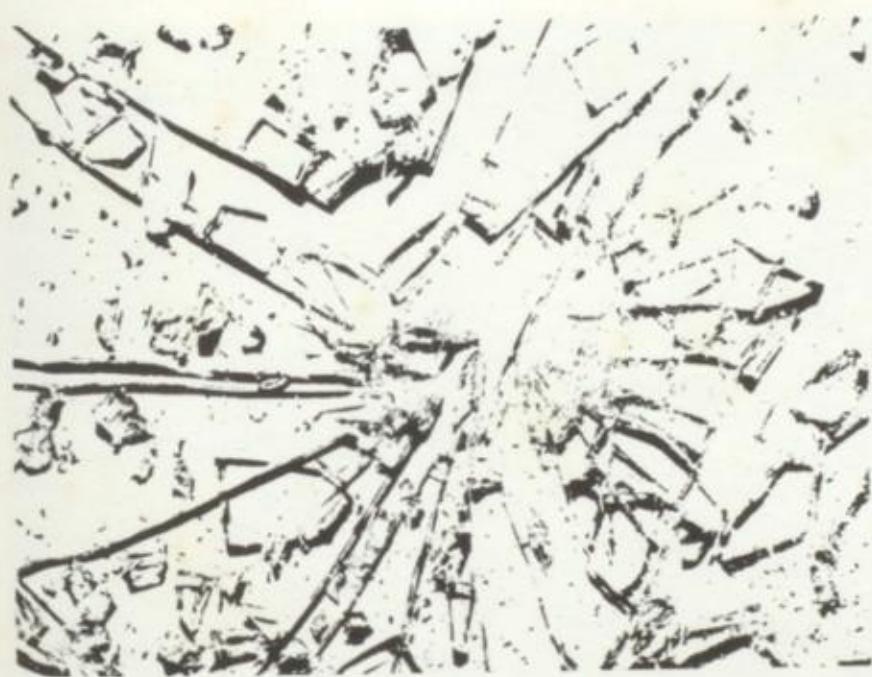

Selling guitars was part of Dick Jackson's job at the Muncie Music Center.

Mike Howell reflected on his summer experiences with "Outward Bound."

Raider Band Rated High

Although they were from the smallest school in the top ten, the Wapahani Marching Band, under the direction of Mr. Donald Litherland, placed sixth at State Fair. The band placed first at the Delaware County Fair, played at the Purdue-Stanford football game and for the general session at the ISTA Convention.

The Raider Brass and the majorettes added music and rhythm to pep sessions and basketball games.

The band, in perfect formation, prepared for a Ball State Band Day performance.

Mr. Litherland listened critically to the tape of a band rehearsal.

International Ideas Added

The Spanish Club and JCL tried to give students a better understanding of the languages.

Raising money for their club, JCL members sponsored several record hops, one which was an inter-school affair. The initiation of new members and the state and national conventions were events which made the year significant. The officers for the year were president, Mike Mauck; vice president, Georgia Lee; secretary, Jenny Helm; and treasurer, Paula Tomlinson.

Programs presented by people who had visited Spanish-speaking countries formed the agenda for many of the Spanish club meetings. Looking ahead several students prepare to visit Mexico this summer with their sponsor, Mrs. Carter, Bill Pereya, president; Dennis Yoder, vice president; Martha Boggs, secretary; and Tom Thornburg, treasurer led the club in their activities.

to the Future

D. E. C. A., the social part of distributive education, offered competitive activities for its members. The students saved one dollar a week for the employer-employee banquet. Officers were Dick Hamilton, president; Bob Jones, vice president; Valerie Hays, secretary; and Mike Brotherton, treasurer.

Visits to other schools gave the members of the Future Teachers Association a better insight on how school systems operate. Several members were teacher aids, sometimes taking charge as the year progressed. Alan Dudley, president; Jerry Harris, vice president; Jan Briggs, secretary; and Gary Bower, treasurer planned and coordinated the activities.

FTA member Linda Conwell assisted at the middle school library.

Clubs Stressed Action, Form

Presentation of the annual Christmas play, a full length play in the spring, and awards to outstanding Thespians were the main activities of the Drama Club. Jan Briggs, president; Doug Black, vice president; Patti Myers, secretary; and Jeff Claspell, treasurer led the club.

A club created for those interested in photography, the Shutter Club gave its members a chance to use the dark room and the equipment needed for developing film. Officers for the year were Jim Powell, president; Dennis Yoder, vice president; Brenda Greek, secretary; and Julie Carraway, treasurer.

Cheri Irby narrated "A Christmas Carol."

Ted Holaday and Charlotte Mauck, as Mr. and Mrs. Cratchett, performed in "A Christmas Carol."

Doug Keesling, Jan Briggs, and Jim Powell played leading roles in "Dates and Mates."

Leadership Personal Goal

Discovering mutual interests with students from other schools and learning the uniqueness of the government filled the week that WHS representatives spent at the Boy's State and Girls' State Conventions.

The initiation of the new junior and senior members and the Sadie Hawkins Dance in March were the two main activities of the National Honor Society. Initiates were judged on character, leadership, and service, and had to maintain a B average or above. Officers were Bruce Dragoo, president; John Barbier, vice-president; Jan Briggs, secretary; and Martha Boggs, treasurer.

After being elected as representatives of their classes, the Student Council members, under the guidance of Mr. Boggs, expressed and tried to solve student problems. A dress code was passed as Jerry Harris, president led the meetings assisted by Brenda Hammer, vice-president; Dianne Cooper, secretary and Susan Holaday, treasurer.

Cheri Irby and Karen Mangas admired the Christmas candles displayed by FHA.

Rick Carnagua and Lana Black enjoyed the fall FHA record hop held in Wapahani's cafeteria.

Their Purpose

Helpfulness being their object, the Future Home-makers of America and the Key Club planned their activities to aid the community.

The FHA worked on the first step of a four-year plan emphasizing making decisions that count. Highlighting this year was the privilege of having the Spring Meeting at Wapahani. Their successful bake sale and candle sales made the year memorable. Carole Abbott, president; Carolyn Woolard, vice president; Kina Addington, secretary; Paula Booher, treasurer; and Donna Conrad, project chairman led the year's activities.

Christmas was a busy season for the Key Club as they planned a party for children in the community as well as distributed food baskets. One of their most lucrative projects was the coat-check at all home basketball games. Officers were president, Marty Price; vice president, Mike Addington; secretary, Doug Black; and treasurer, Mike Garringer.

Clubs Sought Improvement

"To make the best better," the motto of the 4-H club, served as an incentive for the members as they worked on various projects. 4-H Club tried to offer projects to meet the individual interests of all participants. Helping the younger members of the 4-H Club and working at the county and state fairs were the main responsibilities of the Junior Leaders.

The object of the Science Club was to create a greater interest in science. Many demonstrations were given at their meetings. They sponsored a record hop in order to raise money to start a science library. Officers were Doug Black, president; Mike Mauck, vice president; Martha Boggs, secretary; and Jenny Helm, treasurer.

Intramurals Were Popular

Intramural football, basketball, and softball gave many boys a chance to participate in their favorite sport.

Captains were appointed, who in turn chose their team and practice times. Games were played twice weekly, with varsity members acting as officials.

Basketball, hockey, speed ball and archery were four of the activities in which the members of the Girl's Athletic Association participated. The officers who led the girls in their activities were Jackie Taylor, president; Betty Taylor, Vice president; and Debbie Ridge, secretary-treasurer.

Ron Shinkle demonstrated his skill in an intramural game.

Clubs Strove for Unity

Campus Life focused on the spiritual aspect of students' relationships. The club sponsored a very successful WOWO Penny Pitch. Several speakers, such as Rev. Paul Hill and Mr. Robert Grove, gave talks during the meetings. The year's activities were planned by Keith Hill, president; Chris Hill, secretary; and Judy McKelvey, treasurer.

A state-wide organization, the Sunshine Club had helpfulness as their goal. To raise money to "adopt" an orphan, the members sold candy, co-sponsored the Christmas dance and had a style show. Breakfast for the athletic teams and other demonstrations of interest kept the members active. President Barbara Case and her council, Daphne Thornburg, vice president; Janalie Haney and Joyce Konz, secretaries; and Janet Stafford treasurer led the club.

Mark Hill donated to the Penny Pitch, a Campus Life charity project.

Staffers Were Diligent

A race against time prevailed as the LEGEND staff worked hard to reach the deadlines. Planning layouts, perfecting copy, and preparing photo sheets occurred as the staff tried to accurately record the 1969-70 school year. Mrs. Eleanor Spurgeon, adviser, worked with Jim Powell, editor, and Jan Briggs, assistant Editor, who in turn guided the junior editors as they tried to make this book memorable. The junior editors were: Julie Carraway, student life editor; Linda Lambert, organizations editor; LeEllen Strohm, academics editor; Dennis Epperson, athletics editor; Sandy LeMay, People editor; Brenda Greek and Lora Klus, copy editors; Ted Holaday, business manager; and Dennis Yoder and Jack Jordan, photographers.

Editor Jim Powell was serious at his work.

Assistant editor Jan Briggs ironed out staff problems.

Summer Days

Though some people may not think hitting a little white ball around is fun, the guys on the golf team do and they did it very well with a winning 1969 season.

The boys on the Raider baseball team had a busy summer completing their record of 10-8 and have high hopes for next year.

Prior to a match, Bill Couch practiced his swing.

Eager for the arrival of the approaching golf season, Jeff Schenck practiced putting.

Cross Country Placed Third

Wapahani athletes participated in cross country for the benefit of the sport and to get in shape for winter sports. The top runners of the year, Jerry Harris and Bob Glasson, helped set the season record of 5-3.

Coach Richard Rees and his assistant, Mr. Charles Koeppen, worked hard to prepare the boys for competition. The team placed fourth in the county meet and third in the Mid-East Conference.

Mr. Rees instructed Mark Hill on exercises to do during warm-up.

Wrestling Was a Challenge in

In a meet, Gary Jones struggled to avoid a pin.

Attempting to score points, Mike Howell held his man.

Combative Sport

Although wrestling is a fairly new sport at Wapahani, the past season was very successful. Wrestling gives an opportunity for the students to participate in combative sports. Contributing to the success of this year's wrestling team was Mike Howell, who was undefeated in regular season competition, and Chuck Glenn and Richard Jackson who won conference meets in their weight class. Underclassmen, who are developing very quickly, proved themselves many times against more experienced wrestlers.

Mr. Sanford in his first year at Wapahani developed a team that was respected by the whole school for their good representation.

WRESTLING: Row 1- C. Glenn; B. Terry; J. Stillwagon; B. Rogers; H. Paholke; R. Jackson; J. Schenck; M. Howell. Row 2- K. Foreman, manager; R. Orebaugh; J. Perkins; F. Glenn; B. Pierce; G. Zimmerman; R. Scott; B. Sellers; B. Brown; and coach Mr. Sanford.

Jay Stillwagon grabbed his foe in an effort to win.

Raider Varsity

A talk with Mr. Rees seemed to help Bruce Dragoo.

A rebound was taken by Chuck Turner in close action.

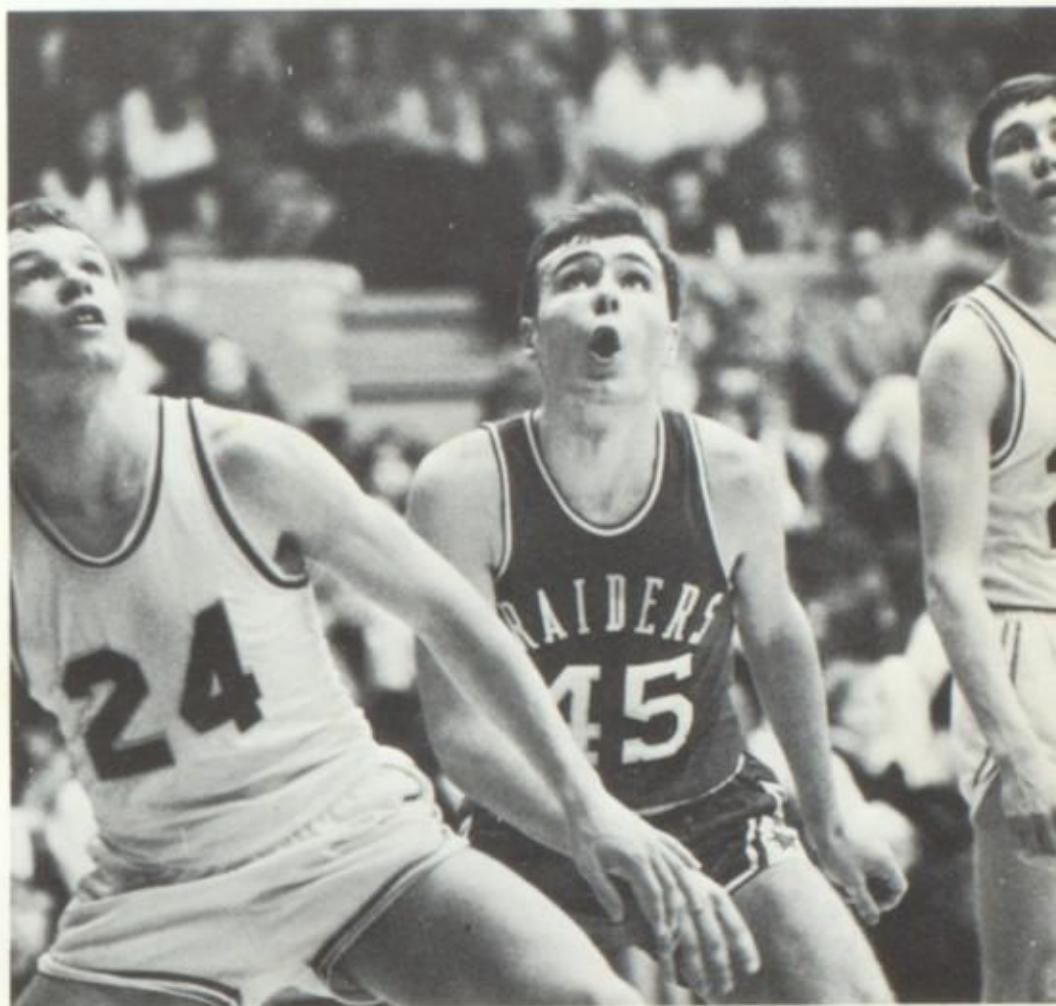

Roger Wright waited as Bruce Dragoo faked a pass.

Had Very Unusual Season

Although many of their games were rough, the boys on the varsity basketball team never gave up; and when it was necessary to take defeat, they took it well and went on to fight harder at the next game. One of the most exciting games of the season was the upset of the number one team in the county, Yorktown. In this game, the Raiders were seeking revenge for the loss to Yorktown in the second game of the county tourney.

Leaping high in the air, Roger Wright sank one.

Anticipating a rebound, Chuck Turner awaited the ball.

They Accepted Victory, Defeat Graciously

Varsity coach Richard Rees and his Raider basketball team had an unusual season with many unexpected victories and defeats. Surprise endings were not unusual occurrences throughout the year as the Raiders might lose to a smaller team but then turn around and beat a much tougher team. Mr. Fahl, B team coach, and Mr. Elman, coach of the freshman and C teams, helped in the preparation of underclassmen for the years they would play on the varsity.

A Delta foe "tasted" the ball due to a block by Jerry Harris.

The ball was taken by Marty Price.

The deep concentration it takes during a foul shot was noticeable on John Barbier's face.

In the huddle the strategy was given by Mr. Rees.

One of the senior cheerleaders was Nicha Gibson.

Emotion was expressed by Debbie Young in this game.

The game looked all right to Sherry Stephenson.

The only junior cheerleader was Debbie Smidley.

Cheers, Tears

Basketball is a favorite sport at Wapahani and girls who want to get involved join cheerblock. Cheerblock is the girls' way to show how much they support their team. Cheerleaders and cheerblock worked hard to build up spirit and prove their loyalty.

Lori Hill, Ileen Stanley, and Jari Spence were the junior varsity cheerleaders.

During the Winchester sectional, Roger Wright was thrown a pass while Chuck Turner and Marty Price looked on. The Raiders defeated Union City, but later fell to Union.

LIBERTY-PERRY SCHOOL BOARD: Ervil Keesling, Charles Weesner, seated. Gene Whitehead, Virgil Cline, Earl Price, Superintendent William Couch.

In a quiet evening at home, a rare occasion for an administrator, Mr. Couch enjoyed his paper.

Superintendent Couch listened attentively to one of the many telephone calls he received daily.

for leadership

Among the improvements put into effect by Liberty-Perry's new superintendent, Mr. William Couch, former Wapahani principal, was the popular ala-carte lunch line, which allowed the student a wider selection of food.

Upon the promotion of Mr. Couch, Mr. Robert Grove became the new principal of Wapahani. He was immediately impressed with the dedicated teaching staff and the modern facilities available to the students. As principal he feels it is important to instill in his students the desire to become good citizens.

It was a very busy year for Mr. Robert Boggs, assistant principal, not only with routine jobs of taking attendance and helping with discipline but also as the sponsor of the student council.

Mr. Robert Boggs, assistant principal and business education teacher, directed the intensive lab program.

Mr. Robert Grove became Wapahani's second principal in August, 1969, after seven years as principal at Laurel, Indiana.

Michael sleepily posed with his mother, father—Principal Grove—and his sister, Angela, for Dennis Yoder, LEGEND photographer.

Cooks, janitors provided for

The janitors worked long hours trying to keep the school building free of debris. Their work often going unnoticed, they still tried to make our building something of which to be proud.

Since students must be fed, the cooks and the student helpers are a necessity. The cooks worked hard to prepare a nutritious meal that would give the students enough energy to last through the day.

students' needs

Lunch offered teachers an opportunity to visit and enjoy brief moments of relaxation.

Carole Abbott, a student cafeteria worker, punched Diane Cooper's lunch ticket.

The cooks, Jeanette Jones, Christine Brooks, Vera Wagner, Emogene Norris, kindly stopped during their busy routine to pose for the cameraman.

Students relied

Mrs. Hough, Liberty-Perry corporation nurse, divided her time among all four schools.

Mrs. Bailey, the school secretary, and the office workers kept the school going as they endeavored to help the students in every way possible. Giving passes to students who were late to class, taking attendance and running errands sometimes made the office a center of hectic turmoil.

The school nurse, Mrs. Hough, helped in many ways as she took temperatures, bandaged fingers, and recorded numerous health data for the students' personal files.

Fred Haisley and Kenneth Brewer, in deep contemplation, relax while waiting for dismissal of school.

Teachers' moods were serious

As teachers go about their daily routine, humorous and interesting incidents often occur as seen through student eyes.

It is very hard for some students to realize that teachers are not always buried in a stack of books. It is often surprising to view a teacher making a mistake, doing something funny, (although not always intentionally), or even enjoying a meal with their fellow teachers. Whether working or relaxing teachers sometimes lose the student's conception of the forever-serious instructor.

The man behind the lens was Mr. McDavitt.

Mr. Litherland, recipient of the Key Club's first Teacher of the Month award, happily accepted it from Mike Addington.

Mr. Brown, sponsor of the cheerblock, gave some last minute instructions while cheerleaders and members listened intently.

and jovial, too

Mrs. Jay chuckled at a comment made by an unseen colleague while spending a few minutes of leisure time in the teachers' lounge.

Seniors studied, traveled,

Experiences like foreign travel and study, workshops, part-time jobs, and hours of summer-time fun were exciting conversation for students returning to Wapahani for that long-awaited senior year.

The realization that they would soon be facing the world on their own after twelve years of rules and supervision often gave the seniors a feeling of inadequacy. Tedious college applications, dreaded entrance exams and nerve-racking job interviews kept the seniors up-tight as they made plans for their future.

The thought of marriage was definitely on the minds of many girls as they prepared for the new role they would acquire after graduation. The responsibility of finding a worthwhile occupation was the concern of many senior boys. Some favored teacher-training, while others showed a preference for mechanics or psychiatry.

As Jean Sellers and Mike Garringer posed in caps and gowns, they began to dream of graduation day.

Jan Briggs and Nicha Gibson recalled Girls' State fun.

school routine

Now acquainted with their surroundings, the sophomores became involved in clubs and extracurricular activities as they entered into the school spirit of Wapahani.

Sophomores had their first taste of scholastic aptitude tests when they were administered the National Education Development Test.

Indecision became prevalent as the sophomores tried to select the style and color of their class rings.

As the girls' minds were filled with boys and dating, the guys were more concerned with whether or not they would make the team.

Suddenly to become the youngest class after being the oldest at the middle school was a big adjustment for the freshmen students. Confusion was common among the ninth graders as they began their first year at Wapahani. Finding the right classroom and learning the knack of opening their sometimes stubborn lockers caused many problems.

Their class sponsor, Mr. Elman, encouraged them to become involved, and the freshmen soon became another important facet of the student life at Wapahani.

Mrs. Hoffman helpfully assisted freshman Mike Finney in finding an appropriate book.

The 1970 LEGEND was published by Paragon Yearbooks, a division of Herff Jones Company. Sand Colortext was used in the opening section and for endsheets; other signatures were lithographed on Calais. The book was set with Century 10 pt. body copy and 8 pt. captions. Heads were 24 pt. Craw Modern. With the exception of senior portraits and organization pictures by People's Studio, pictures were taken by student photographers. The cover and division pages were designed by the staff.
